Description

Eurostat (Statistical Office of the European Communities) is the statistical office of the European Union. It collects and analyses data on the different European statistical institutes and promotes the harmonisation of Member States' statistical methods. Its aim is to provide high-quality statistics at European level that allow comparisons to be made between countries and regions.

The portal offers direct access to statistical data free of charge. The data is divided into 9 statistical themes and multiple sub-themes. It contains statistics on population, trade, economy or tourism among others. The data can be downloaded directly from the database.
